Services Honor Flood Dead Memory

SPECIAL services were held throughout Monroe County over the weekend to honor the memory of the 75 persons who lost their lives in the Aug. 18-19, 1955 flash flood.

Rites conducted in three churches and at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College dwelt chiefly on the memorial theme. In almost all other churches, clergymen made mention of the tragedy and gave thanks to God for sparing the community further disaster during the past year.

Services in the college auditorium were in memory of the 38 adults and children who drowned at Camp Davis, a cottage colony located below Analomink, when the building in which they had taken refuge collapsed in the swirling flood waters.

A large portion of the 400 worshippers who attended were relatives of flood victims. Rev. Leon Davis, Nanuet, N.Y., owner of the camp, presided. The speakers were Rev. Gordon Anderson, Nyack, N.Y.; Rev. Norman Savage, East Stroudsburg Baptist pastor, and Rev. Davis.

The worshippers heard words of comfort and the promise that one day those who were so quickly torn from life would meet again in the world beyond.

Saturday morning, Rev. Harold G. Durkin conducted a solemn high requiem mass in St. Matthew's Catholic Church in memory of flood dead. The mass, which was largely attended, was for the repose of the souls of those who died, to thank God for sparing so many lives and to ask God that this area be spared any future disaster. "Lest We Forget" was the theme of a commemorative service in East Stroudsburg Methodist Church yesterday morning. Rev. Harold C. Eaton, host pastor, and Rev. William F. Wunder, of Grace Lutheran Church, participated along with representatives of a number of agencies and organizations in the community.

Taking part were Judge Fred W. Davis, Civil Defense director; Herman Smeltz, member of Borough Council; Burgess Jesse R. Flory; Charles R. Bensinger, county Red Cross chairman, and Fire Chief Marvin Abel. Each spoke in behalf of his organization in relation to the flood and rehabilitation.

Rev. Eaton said well over 500 persons attended the service. Rev. Wunder led in prayer and Robert Kranendonk sang two selections.

In recalling the flood, Mr. Eaton said that the heroes throughout were our neighbors, the folks who risked their lives and limbs for other people from down the block. The courage and selflessness of these heroes, he said, vividly portrayed the capacity for response on the part of citizens of the community in time of need.

Last night, a large representation from each of the four churches of the Analomink Methodist Church assembled in the Analomink church for a memorial service conducted by Rev. Justin C. Feltham, pastor.

Speaking on "God, Man and Nature," the minister developed the idea that God's creation never ceases and just as the grass, flowers and plants recreated themselves on the banks of floodwashed creeks, so has God recreated the lives of those who were lost in the flood.

Two members and six close relatives of members were among those honored at the services. A bouquet of flowers was presented to the church by the Analomink Disaster Committee.

MEMORIAL SERVICES were held yesterday and Saturday in tribute to 75 persons who lost their lives in last year's flood. One of the services was in East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, with these men taking part: (left to right) Judge Fred W. Davis, Herman Smeltz, Burgess Jesse Flory, Rev. Harold C. Eaton, Rev. ## Bloom Accuses Stassen Of 'Disservice'

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19 (AP)—George I. Bloom, Republican state chairman for Pennsylvania, said tonight Harold Stassen, "who is a personal friend of mine," has done a "disservice at this late date" in his attempt to dump Vice President Nixon.

Bloom said a check he made of Pennsylvania delegates and alternates convinces him the delegation is ready on the eve of the GOP National Convention to reaffirm its May 19 stand in Philadelphia on a plank endorsing President Eisenhower and Nixon.

"It is my opinion that Nixon is strengthening rather than weakening the ticket," he said.

The 70-member Pennsylvania delegation arranged to get together at a dinner at the St. Francis Hotel tonight, then called a brief business session, principally to reaffirm the stand on Nixon.

Prediction
Bloom predicted Pennsylvania, which chose a Democratic state administration in 1954, will go Republican in the national election in November by at least the margin of more than 200,000 votes if he gave Eisenhower-Nixon in 1952.

He said Sen. James H. Duff would win re-election over the bid of Joseph Clark, former Philadelphia mayor, "because Clark is tied in with Americans for Democratic Action and those good country counties just don't care for ADA."

Rep. Richard Simpson, of the 18th Pennsylvania District, who is chairman of the GOP congressional Campaign Committee, said his checks with field men convinced him the November election will change the complexion of the House from 232 Democrats, 203 Republicans to 235 Republicans, 200 Democrats. And he added his belief that Pennsylvania's delegation, now 16-14 Republican, will "gain three and possibly four seats."

Three Nations Pledge Aid

DAMASCUS, Syria, Aug. 19 (AP)—Defense Minister Abdulhussain Raslan said today Syria, Egypt and Saudi Arabia have agreed to extend permanent financial aid to Jordan's National Guard to help "equip this important defensive organ against the Israeli threat."

Statements
Raslan told newsmen the move was finally decided on in current talks between King Hussein of Jordan and Syrian President Shukri Kuwailat.

This aid will be unconditional, he said, and is separate from a previous Syrian-Egyptian-Saudi Arabian offer to Jordan to replace the annual British grants to that kingdom with Arab funds.

Jordan is one of four Arab states around Israel. The others are Egypt, Syria and Lebanon.

Tydings Quits Race

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Aug. 19 (AP)—Millard E. Tydings today withdrew as Maryland's Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, saying his health made it "impossible for me to conduct a vigorous campaign."

Stevenson To Use Truman's Services As Much As Possible During Presidential Battle

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill., Aug. 19 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson's campaign director said tonight Harry S. Truman's services will be utilized to the limit of his availability during the campaign ahead.

James A. Finnegan also told reporters Stevenson will formally open his campaign for the presidency Sept. 13 with a 30-minute nationwide TV appearance.

This address, from a city to be decided later, will be one of six 30-minute radio and TV appearances for which time has been reserved for the Democratic nominee. In addition, Finnegan said, there will be 80 spot TV programs during the campaign at the end of regular TV shows.

Finnegan made these announcements as he and a group of advisers visited with Stevenson at his farm home. In the group was Clayton Fritchey, deputy Democratic National Committee chairman, who is expected to perform a major role in the public relations setup for the campaign.

Willings
Truman, who lost a fight to block Stevenson's nomination, has signified his willingness to give full support to the ticket in the race against President Eisenhower.

Earlier Stevenson pattered around his farm. He was a comfortable but not very impressive figure in blue jeans, blue canvas shoes and brown socks that did not blend at all.

The Democratic presidential nominee, fresh from his triumph at the party convention last week, told reporters he wants to cover as much of the country as possible in the campaign ahead.

Whether there will be a "whistle-stop campaign," which is his desire, will be worked out during conferences this week with members of the Democratic National Committee and his own staff topped by James A. Finnegan, his campaign director and architect of his nomination victory.

First Step
"The first step," the former Illinois governor told reporters, "is to work out plans for a merger of my staff and that of the national committee."

Stevenson said that during the week, he expects to conduct a number of conferences, both at his home here and by telephone, with Finnegan and members of his staff, and with Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), his vice-presidential running mate.

"I had a wonderful night's sleep, about nine or 10 hours," he said. "My average of the past 10 days has not been too good. On two or three nights, I didn't get to bed before 3 or 4 a.m. Being the country type, I'm not accustomed to living it up that way."

Stevenson said he expects to stay at Libertyville at least a week before he makes "any move at all."

British Plan Bid

LONDON, Aug. 19 (AP)—Britain was reported tonight to be planning a fresh bid to solve the Cyprus dispute in the light of the Greek Cypriot extremists' pledge to abandon terror tactics.

Drafters Of Platform Call For System

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19 (AP)—Republican platform drafters called today for a continuance of a collective security system as the basis for American efforts to build a more lasting peace.

A tentative platform plank on foreign policy approved by the GOP National Convention's 106-member Resolutions Committee declared this system—started in 1947—has steadily developed on a bipartisan basis.

"That system," it said, "has joined the United States with 42 other nations in common defense of freedom. It has created a deterrent to war which cannot be nullified by Soviet veto."

This plank, together with the full platform, will be laid before the convention Tuesday for approval.

The committee, in reviewing foreign policies of the Eisenhower administration, declared that "far-reaching steps have been taken to eliminate the danger of a third world war."

Referring to the troubled Near East area, the plank said that the preservation of Israel should be an important tenet of American foreign policy. It proposed that the United States support the independence of Israel against armed aggression, but unlike the platform adopted by the Democratic National Convention at Chicago last week, it said nothing about providing Israel with arms to offset supplies furnished rival Egypt by Soviet Russia.

Meanwhile, the platform drafters sought to placate Southern delegates who are fighting against the inclusion of a "strong" civil rights plank in the platform. Committee leaders conferred with Southern leaders in an effort to convince the latter that it was in the interest of the country as well as of the party that the Republicans take a strong stand on this issue.

The tentative foreign policy plank pointed with pride to the conduct of foreign affairs by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.

Seven Perish In Syria
DAMASCUS, Syria, Aug. 19 (AP)—The Syrian press said today seven persons were killed and 257 injured in recent pro-Egyptian demonstrations in the British protectorate of Kuwait.

The Socialist daily Al Rai Alaam quoting a recent arrival from Kuwait, said demonstrators clashed with armed Bedouin police. The witness said police were ordered by Sheikh Abdullah Alahmad, deputy chief security officer, to disperse them by force.

Reasoning
"Gov. Leader is now engaging in a great deal of loose talk about 'shocking revelations' that he has in store. Apparently he has decided that he will try to fool the people with a campaign of the keynote peeping variety."

"It is all part of a gigantic scheme," Smith said, "to keep the people from finding out the truth about the costly bungling and gross incompetence of Gov. Leader's administration."

Agreement Reached On Contract Providing Pay Increases For Workers In Two Plants

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP)—An agreement has been reached by negotiators on a contract providing wage increases for 4,500 steelworkers in 10 American Chain and Cable Co. plants.

The new increases will come to about 45.6 cents an hour over a three-year term contract, E. J. Williams, company vice president in charge of operations, said yesterday.

The old contract expires Aug. 31.

Boosta
The new agreement calls for hourly wage boosts of 9.5 cents, 8.3 cents and 8.3 cents in successive years at nine fabricating plants employing about 3,500 workers. A 7.5 cents, 7.3 and 7.3 yearly in-

Big Three Determined To Present Plan

LONDON, Aug. 19 (AP)—The Western Big Three is determined to present its Suez Canal operation plan to Egypt's President Nasser with or without Soviet and Indian approval, it was reported authoritatively tonight.

The 22-nation conference seeking a way out of the Suez crisis was recessed today but there was a flurry of backstage maneuvering. When the meeting reconvenes tomorrow, it will hear India's V.K. Krishna Menon, who has been seeking a compromise.

But reliable informants said the United States, Britain and France will insist their plan be laid before Nasser along with other views expressed here.

They said if Nasser accepts the West's plan for international control, negotiations can be carried out by a team appointed by the conference. Informants said there would be "no take it or leave it ultimatum," however. The West is willing to negotiate with Egypt.

If he rejects it, the problem will go back to individual governments in a continued crisis atmosphere, the informants said.

Egyptian spokesmen in London have said—and Nasser has been quoted as saying—the West's plan will be rejected by Egypt because it provides foreign management of canal operations.

The Western attitude became clear tonight after other delegations at the conference had spent the day studying the Western plan. It was circulated to all delegations yesterday by U.S. Secretary of State Dulles.

Since there appears little hope the Russians will go along with Western views, it is likely three different proposals will go to Nasser—Western, Russian and Indian.

It is the West's view that if Nasser accepts its proposal, he will have made his nationalization coup stick at little cost and considerable future gain, and his stature in the Arab world will be assured.

Possibility
If he rejects it, according to Western strategists, the result may be an economic disaster for the Arab nations. They argue that without guarantee of uninterrupted passage through the canal for its ships, the West would have to turn to oil resources outside the Middle East. That would mean loss of a billion dollars a year in oil revenues for the Arab countries. At the same time, confidence of Western nations, who alone can finance development of Middle East countries, would be destroyed, they say.

It is expected the conference's communications to Nasser will be dispatched by the middle of the week. The conference then would be suspended until the Egyptian President replies.

Dulles today lunched with Lord Salisbury, one of Prime Minister Eden's top advisers, and was a dinner guest with Eden, Lady Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd at a dinner given by U.S. Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich.

Smith Raps Leader For 'Campaign'
HARRISBURG, Aug. 19 (AP)—Rep. Charles C. Smith, House Republican floor leader, says Gov. Leader has started a "smear campaign" against the GOP to divert attention from "the gross incompetence" of his administration.

Smith, the Republican candidate for auditor general in November, said in a statement yesterday:

"Gov. Leader is now engaging in a great deal of loose talk about 'shocking revelations' that he has in store. Apparently he has decided that he will try to fool the people with a campaign of the keynote peeping variety."

"It is all part of a gigantic scheme," Smith said, "to keep the people from finding out the truth about the costly bungling and gross incompetence of Gov. Leader's administration."

Stassen's Drive For Herter Appears 'Sagging'

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19 (AP)—Republican politicians streamed into town today bent on battering back Harold E. Stassen's lonely bid to sidetrack Vice President Nixon at the GOP National Convention which opens tomorrow.

Stassen's campaign to substitute Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts as the 1956 running mate for President Eisenhower was sagging sadly.

Top GOP leaders have scoffed at it all along. Today the run-of-mine delegates reaching the Golden Gate were saying, too, the Stassen drive is dead.

One measure of its futility was the fact that Stassen is a Minnesota boy—a former governor—but couldn't muster anything like solid support from the Minnesota delegation.

So a convention which is going to nominate Eisenhower with no disagreement at all apparently will nominate Nixon with almost as little when it gets around to the actual balloting in midweek.

All but ignoring Stassen's efforts delegates arrived in gay and rollicking mood, cockily confident of another sweeping victory for the party ticket they must go through the motions of picking.

They have that "peace and prosperity" theme going for them, along with Eisenhower's own great popularity, against the Democratic team of Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver.

Stassen said he thought Eisenhower would put out a list of various Republicans acceptable as a running mate. But GOP Chairman Leonard Hall asserted through a spokesman that the President had no such plan.

There is some talk now of getting other names in nomination—maybe Herter, maybe Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland, maybe former Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado.

But, in spite of what Stassen keeps saying, the vice-presidential nomination is all but wrapped up and delivered.

The 70-vote Pennsylvania delegation headed into a huddle tonight to reaffirm, according to Stassen GOP Chairman George I. Bloom, a unanimous endorsement it gave Eisenhower and Nixon last May.

Meantime a mob of Young Republicans from Pennsylvania and San Francisco took over the lobby of the convention headquarters hotel, the Fairmont, and cut loose with banners, serpentine, confetti, a fast-beat band and yells of "We Want Nixon." A lad in straw hat and 'coonskin coat went into an exuberant Charleston.

There wasn't anything like it in evidence for Herter or anybody else.

Conventioners also faced the prospect of a rather humdrum party convalescence.

Convention Chairman Joseph W. Martin, the House Republican leader from Massachusetts, told a news conference today it's going to be a "comparatively quiet" convention.

Martin also contended: "There is no such thing as a closed convention. All conventions are open."

Possibilities
Three possibilities were in sight for perking up this party convalescence:

1. President Eisenhower's decision in Washington to fly here Tuesday for an extra day of meeting and mingling with delegates in advance of his acceptance of the presidential nomination Thursday.

2. Talk among some Southern delegations of taking to the convention floor their dissatisfaction with a party platform said to go farther than they want. The platform being polished up today was reported to endorse the Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools. It also was said to call for steps to carry out the decision.

3. Stassen's campaign to persuade the convention to jettison Nixon for vice president and take Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts.

Most Republicans, from top leaders down through the rank and file, agreed with the assessment of Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire that the White House aide who went on leave for this drive isn't "making much if any progress."

It wasn't because Stassen wasn't trying—and in a new role for these party meetings at which he himself has been a contender over the years for the party presidential nomination.

This time he is peddling his stop Nixon movement on the basis that it will cost Eisenhower more than 4,600,000 votes if the vice president is a repeat selection for a running mate.

Stassen found time for church this morning, and then for round after round of conferences and activities aimed at bringing converts to his cause. Aides said he had something like five appearances on radio and TV on tap during the day.

Stevenson To Speak In Harrisburg

Opening
"Mr. Stevenson will get the campaign under way for us on Sept. 12 to raise funds for helping pay our election expenses," Gov. Leader said over the weekend. "Mr. Kefauver will come into the state for several appearances later."

Community Chest Letters In Mail

PERSONAL letters have been sent out to resort hotel owners and managers in the first phase of the 1956-57 Community Chest drive.

Signed by William W. Malleon Jr., resort division chairman, the letters emphasize the growing importance of the Chest's role in the community.

The resort division makes up the first phase of the annual Chest drive. Through solicitations from resort owners — while the Summer season is actually in progress — the Chest allows itself to tap resources which might otherwise be unavailable in the campaign proper.

Leaders

Working with Malleon on the divisional drive are nearly two dozen other community leaders. In his letters the division chief points out that he would like to be able to make an "up-to-date" report sometime after Labor Day.

A pledge card and an envelope is enclosed in each letter sent so that resort operators may communicate easily with the division chairman or the Chest office.

Meyner To Speak At District Convention At Unity House

FOREST PARK—Seventh annual district 4 convention of the International Union of Electrical Workers opens today at Unity House.

Main speaker for the three-day conference will be New Jersey Gov. Robert A. Meyner. Delegates to the convention began arriving yesterday morning. The IUE now has a membership totaling 80,000 in the district. According to a union official this is a gain of 20,000 workers, including former units of the shrinking Independent United Electrical Workers Union.

In 1948, the IUE was given a "goal" by the CIO, its parent union body — to "eliminate" the "Communist-dominated" UEW and free it of the Red taint, an officers' report said last night. IUE officials said that the union has made substantial gains in the field of collective bargaining during the past few months.

OFF MIKE

by Joe Whalen

OFTEN WE HAVE introduced personalities who appear before the WVPO microphones, but who are not members of the staff. Today, we have the pleasure of introducing the newest addition to the programming staff, Ed Sturtevant. Ed comes to us from ESSTC via Boston—which is the long way around—and replaces Bill Staples, who moves out into the world of teaching after graduating from ESSTC this month.

Sturtevant can almost put a claim in for Stroudsburg as a second hometown because, after marrying a charming local lady, he now resides on Main Street as he matriculates on Normal Hill. Ed received his B. S. degree from Boston University and is now picking up some certification credits at the local state teachers college.

Ed is no stranger to the radio business, an obvious fact you may have realized already, if you heard his broadcasting bits since he's been appearing at the 840 spot. Sturtevant has worked around the New England section doing news and sports for a good many years. At WVPO, he will handle the early evening shift and also put forth on the weekends. The New Englander's deep and authoritative approach, plus his diversified knowledge of sports and music, should provide many enjoyable hours of listening pleasure for all.

And so, as we say so long to Brother Bill Staples, who has done an admirable job here and we wish him all kinds of good luck in Ridgefield Park, N. J., we welcome Ed Sturtevant to the ranks of animated announcers and hope his efforts are enjoyed by our entire listening audience.

Water Gap Firemen Open Drive

DELAWARE Water Gap fire company officially begins its second annual fund drive tonight at 7:15 with a blast of the borough fire siren.

In letters being sent this week to borough residents and business houses, the fire company points out that it is almost entirely self-supporting.

During the past year the company has added two "vital" pieces of equipment, according to James Anthony, assistant chief and chairman of the drive.

The equipment added is a new American-LaFrance engine and a new resuscitator-inhalator-aspirator. Neither piece of equipment is fully paid for, Anthony said.

Good
Last year's fund campaign—despite the flood three days after the drive began—was a good one, company officials said. Residents and businessmen responded and cooperated very well, Anthony noted.

Persons may either return their contributions by mail, using the addressed, stamped envelope included in the solicitation packet or they may give to firemen when they "make their rounds" on Monday, Aug. 27—one week from today.

The drive which begins tonight is the only official drive conducted during the year by the fire company, Anthony emphasized. It replaced such former activities as the borough firemen's carnival which were used to raise funds in the past.

Predicted Increase In Traffic Dictates Building Of Shortway

Opponents of the proposal to build a cross-state freeway from Stroudsburg to Sharon have overlooked, or at least disregarded, one important argument in favor of the Keystone Shortway.

This is the prediction made by C. D. Curtis, commissioner, U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, that traffic will increase about 100 percent over its present figure by 1975.

He estimated the number of cars and trucks will jump to 81,000,000 by 1965 and to between 92 and 95 million by 1975.

Part of the increase, he forecast, will be due to the growth of population in the United States and part because of the greater reliance being placed upon motor vehicles as a means of transportation.

His figures closely parallel those other traffic experts have predicted from time to time, and point up the necessity of dealing with the problem before it reaches the critical stage.

The U. S. has embarked on the biggest public works project in its history — the gigantic road-building program resulting from legislation recently signed by President Eisenhower. The new program will be undertaken under a 33 billion dollar authorization and it may go as high as 50 billion.

Success of the program depends in large measure upon how well the money is apportioned to highways that will best meet the needs as projected for 1965 and 1975.

Surely, the Keystone Shortway meets the major requirements laid down by any line of sound reasoning.

First of all, it will be a very vital link in the shortest possible route between the nation's two largest cities, New York and Chicago, which gives it the advantage over all existing highways north and south of the proposed line.

The tremendous industrial-commercial traffic potential of the Shortway route, according to actual studies, extends from the Boston area of New England down to the metropolitan New York-New Jersey district — all badly in need of a direct, shorter route to the midwestern industrial-commercial centers.

As a military highway, the Shortway would be without peer because it would be constructed without tunnels and therefore be more sabotage and bomb resistant in case of enemy attack.

Furthermore, the Shortway would open up a vast new area — much of it undeveloped — where new industries and businesses would welcome the opportunity to move in because the best in transportation facilities would be available. Greater prosperity for the entire state would result because the growing population would permit expansion and development of the northern counties on their own merits rather than at the expense of Southern Pennsylvania.

As a limited access highway, the Shortway would allow through traffic to reach distant points without delay, while still handling vehicles traveling lesser distances.

It might mean a temporary loss of business to parallel routes running across the northern and southern parts of the state, but in the aggregate would not be felt by such roads as Route 6 and the Pennsylvania Turnpike because of the growth in population and the accompanying increase in motor vehicle registrations.

We therefore invite groups opposed to the Shortway to consider the project from a long-range viewpoint and join with proponents in pressing for prosecution of the Shortway plan as another key link in the over-all highway picture.

The Bare Truth

The Legion of bald-headed men, and the many women who suffer from similar lack of hirsute adornment, can take heart in a recent report to the nation by a professor of anatomy.

The professor claims that baldness is caused by the brain growing so large that it cuts off the circulation of blood to the scalp and the hair falls out. What the educator seems to be saying is that you can always spot an "egghead" because he looks like one.

Gone are such lame excuses as "Grass doesn't grow on a busy street" and "Look at the American bald-headed eagle." Now from this learned study of anatomy, people with high foreheads can rally to a new battle cry. "Our brains are just bigger than your, that's all."

Unfortunately for mankind, the manifestation of a larger brain — as evidenced by the growing number of bald-headed persons — is no sure guarantee that either its contents or its potential has increased with the size. The size of our brains is not important. What we do with them is.

Morse's Speech Deals With Current Issues; Supports Desegregation, Aid To Education

Wayne Morse, former Republican, now a Democrat, really belongs to no party because he is an intense individualist who calls himself a Constitutional Liberal. His speech at the Democratic Convention was, in a sense, out of place because it was too elevated, too literate, too considered, to philosophic for his audience who applauded at the wrong time and, as the television demonstrated, paid little heed to him. I telephoned to a delegate to discuss Morse's speech; he told me the noise was so distressing that where he sat not a word could be heard.

Wayne Morse was used on the program to help him win his Senatorial seat in Oregon despite his violation of American tradition against mugwumpism. This must have been true about all those Senatorial candidates who read planks of the platform while caucuses were being held on the floor. Radio and television reduces the delegates to sweating robots; the speeches are made for the television audience.

Morse did two things in his speech: he attacked the entire position of the Southern Democrats by denying the right of the Southern states to place any restrictions upon specific American citizens, namely, Negroes. This he did at a Democratic Convention where he appeared for the first time. Secondly, he spoke up for Federal aid to education which would be popular among Democrats, but his insistence upon using off-shore oil for education is not so popular among Texans, for instance.

It was a courageous thing to do, but the reason that Morse could deliver his particular type of address, which over the next four years will have a greater influence upon the course of events than many other events at Chicago, is that he does not regard himself as a Republican or a Democrat but as a Constitutional Americanism. He may find several Republicans who hold to the same position.

It is interesting historically that Wayne Morse's conception of American political life was George Washington's who, in his Farewell Address, said:

"I have already intimated to you the danger of parties in the State, with particular reference to the founding of them on geographical discrimination. Let me now take a more comprehensive view, and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party, generally."

"This spirit, unfortunately, is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind. It exists under different shapes in all governments, more or less stifled, controlled, or repressed; but in those of the popular form it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy."

Washington regarded the political party as leading to despotism. He said:

"... The disorders and miseries which result gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and sooner or later the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortunate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purposes of his own elevation, on the ruins of public liberty."

Of course, this forecast has proved to be true in some countries in Central and South America and it was true in Italy, Germany, Soviet Russia and other nations where personality triumphed over principle, where party mastered the people. But it has not been true in the United States where whether the President was a powerful or a weak man, no dictatorship either of party or individual asserted itself. Washington possessed the power of precedence, for he was able to foresee many dangers to his country, among them this one:

"... It (party loyalty) opens the doors to foreign influence and corruption, which find a facilitated access to the Government itself through the channels of party passions. Thus the policy and the will of one country are subjected to the policy and will of another."

Wayne Morse dared to appear at a Democratic Convention and to denounce "Party-firsters," namely those who never think of their country but only of the advantage to their party. He did not attack Herbert Hoover, as Sam Rayburn did twice. Rayburn apparently did not realize that Herbert Hoover has not run for the Presidency since 1932. Morse dealt with the real issues that face the United States not the phony personal antagonisms which do not actually exist but are articulated only for public consumption.

"Its leadership can mean but one thing: more hurricanes, colder winters, fewer clams in clam chowder, more runs in women's hosiery and additional difficulty getting the service station to remove the squeaks from the new car. Choose any but our great party in the coming election, my friends, and you will be denied what the people of the United States are demanding above everything else at this crucial hour... more plugs for use in parking meters and a license plate with 'P.D.' on it for every car! What is the other great message that comes from all parts of the country? That message is 'More butter on the baked potato!' And it comes collect."

—by H. I. Phillips

The Once Over

All-Purpose Convention Speech "Fellow delegates: This is a glorious hour, however noisy. We stand at Armageddon and we battle for the TV audience. In us the people find true champions of justice, shorter hours, longer vacations, more cream on the strawberries, the split-level house and the larger picture window. What is the cry our noble party hears coming from the throats of the people at this hour? It comes clearly to us in a mighty roar sweeping across valley and mountain. Less money down and another five years for time payments! Yes, my friends, and if we, the true friends of the people, listen carefully we hear the supplications, 'We demand music with our meals!' and 'Two hard-tops in every garage!'

"Our party is a party which responds to the wants of the public. And this is National Response Week. We shall respond if it takes our last semicolon, video shirt and exclamation point."

English Girls Manage Their Seaside Romeos

London's Daily Sketch recently ran a newspaper series called "Every Girl's Guide to Seaside Romeos." In England, of course, about the only holiday spots are a bit more diversified, but so inclusive are London columnist Jon Collen's instructions they will do quite well inland, USA.

Where you meet Romeo, what he'll wear, how you get talking, how to spend your evenings, how you appeal to him most, and what's his type—these are the categories.

The little, What's His Type, is not available for a new show unless I get a cut. American rights here reserved, with columnist Collen getting dibs on B. V. V.

Under Three, "How you get talking," is obviously the best bet among the above categories. The other sort of take care of themselves. The opening line of conversation, in my circumspect experience, is the keynote to romance. The British advice is, "Chew your gum in the gentleman's direction and when he gets within striking distance, say 'Howya, Handsome!'"

If this approach should seem to overdo the "forward look," you might trip over his feet on the beach, or start to drown within easy reach. Book shop or musical encounter might blossom after the swim inquires politely "whether you think Stravinsky is Van Gogh set to music," or if Debussy isn't just a "little demode." This arty type is kept interested by a girl's wearing dark glasses, the coffee straight and straggling, and no make-up. The young lady is admonished to try and find out who or what Van Gogh is or was.

Social climbing Romeos at English seaside are intrigued by casual references to "my friend Sir Bernard" or "what Lady Chessington told me." Now, the American lass is regrettably at a disadvantage here. Suggested substitute: "what Elsa Maxwell told me." Or, "I was telling Dorothy Kilgallen just the other day..."

The dog-and-slipper-by-the-fire type fellow likes to speak of (and have you listen to) his ambitions and his mother. Don't nag him—yet! Is the Britisher's caution, seconded here by this and all other masculine categories.

Well, the "Every Girl's Guide" was all in fun. Summer romances are delightful, whether pursued on land, sea, or in the air. Just don't take them seriously, until you see the white of that wedding veil.

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

Abel Green, Variety ed., lecturing a class of embryo journalists on the dangers confronting anybody who always thinks he can outsmart the competition, told this story to bear out his point:

A man bought some fine Havana cigars and had them insured against fire. After smoking them all, he put in a claim on the grounds that they had been destroyed by fire. The indignant insurance execs naturally refused to pay, so the wisecracker sued. What's more, he won his case. The judge decided that once the company had accepted a premium and issued a policy, it was financially responsible.

The sharpie accepted payment but had little time to gloat. The insurance company had him arrested for arson!

A robust sense of humor proved the undoing of Dentist Dinkelspiel. He pulled too many good ones.

Democratic Congressmen Involved In Federal Probes

San Francisco, August 19—There is an anticipatory gleam in the eye of Republican campaign chiefs that has nothing to do with the National Convention here.

Their carefully guarded elation is based on a spectacular time bomb they have been quietly planting under the Democrats for weeks.

This electioneering bombshell—the hope—is a number of federal grand juries that are investigating corruption and other sensational charges in major centers throughout the country.

They include New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Denver, San Francisco, Los Angeles.

Involved in these probes are Democrats in Congress, and state and local officers. Some of them have already been secretly grilled.

In Chicago, around ten of these Federal juries are at work under the direction of a corps of prosecutors sent there especially for this purpose by the Justice Department.

Heading them is Special Assistant Attorney General Max Goldscheider, top troubleshooter of Attorney General Brownell. Goldscheider had a big hand in the indictment and conviction in St. Louis recently of two prominent officials of the Truman regime, former Assistant Attorney General T. Lamar Caudel and White House Assistant Matthew Connolly. Their appeal is now pending.

Working with Goldscheider in Chicago are James J. Sullivan, an indictment specialist of Justice Department, and Vincent P. Russo and Charles McNelis, of the criminal division.

The special grand jury in Washington is investigating a high-powered lobby that in the last several sessions of Congress has sought to ram through legislation to return an estimated $500,000,000 in German and Japanese property seized during the war. A number of well known Democratic and Republican lame ducks were active in this drive.

Foremost among them is former Senator Scott Lucas, Ill.

Spearhead of this wide-ranging judicial drive is Attorney General Brownell, a key campaign strategist of the Administration. He will be in the forefront of the great fall election battle.

His chief lieutenant in these prosecutions is Assistant Attorney General Warren Olney, head of the Criminal Division. A former California University, Berkeley, law professor and director of the State Crime Commission under then-Governor Earl Warren, Olney is little known outside the Justice Department. But he is one of its most brilliant and feared law enforcers.

Olney does little public talking, but in the courts he is deadly.

That is why GOP campaign chiefs are so pleasurably "licking their chops," so to speak. They foresee a lot of political gold in "them grand juries."

Behind The Convention—President Eisenhower expressed surprise when congressional leaders told him they didn't care for any other briefing from Secretary Dulles on the Suez Canal crisis when he returned from the London conference. Said House Leader Joe Martin, Mass., dryly, "No need for a briefing if we don't learn any more than we did at this one." . . . The following will explain in a few words why oil prices all over the world are hanging by a thread as a result of the Suez seizure. On an average day, more than 50,000,000 gallons of oil pass through this crucial waterway that Nasser proposes to dominate. . . . Russian oil production in 1955 was approximately 1,400,000,000 barrels a day. That's about one-fifth of U. S. output. This year, the Soviet has put a number of new wells into operation in the Ural-Volga region, and daily output is above last year. . . . Neutralist Burma is learning an oft-repeated and bitter lesson in its dealings with the Reds. Burma sold a lot of rice to the Communists, part of it in exchange for goods and services. Now the Reds are peddling that rice to Burma's chief customers at cut-rate prices. . . . Syria's Minister of Economy Khalil Al-Kallas is the latest Arab official to junket to Red China for trade purposes. He wants to barter wheat for Chinese (Russian) arms and goods. . . . The bombings and killings in Cyprus have had no effect on the grain crop. It's a record-breaker, totaling 78,000 tons of wheat and 70,000 tons of barley. The harvesting is being done by 200 British combines, and planting was aided by 2,000 British tractors. This equipment has been untouched in the fighting.

Harry Obits head golf pro and vice president of Shawnee Inn and Country Club, took time off from his regular duties the other day to make his debut in the comic world.

Obits sent an idea to Jimmy Hatlo for the latter's "They'll Do It Every Time" feature that appears in newspapers nationally.

The feature ran in The Daily Record on Thursday of this week.

Since we passed the flood anniversary last Saturday, it might be a good idea to reveal how high the Philadelphia Phillies hold the people of this area.

Harry Janson, Tannersville, recently returned a pair of reserve seat tickets for August 19, 1955, the day of the big flood. He had little hope of any sort of settlement. But, the National League club sent him a pair of box seat tickets, which are more expensive than the original purchase.

The seat turned out to be right by the dugout.

But because she plays a school teacher in the film, James Mason, who produced it, said a school teacher just couldn't have that kind of shape (which shows what English James Mason knows about American school teachers) so he provided her with two pounds of padding to fill up the hollows and straighten out the curves, and that's unfriendly to Americans, huh!

Obits Strokes Way Into Art Act

By Jim Riley

Harry Obits head golf pro and vice president of Shawnee Inn and Country Club, took time off from his regular duties the other day to make his debut in the comic world.

Obits sent an idea to Jimmy Hatlo for the latter's "They'll Do It Every Time" feature that appears in newspapers nationally.

The feature ran in The Daily Record on Thursday of this week.

Although Harry didn't draw the cartoon, he definitely has made his bow in the world of comics.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Connor, Philadelphia, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Shook.

The Shooks live in Tannersville.

Paul Carlson, Daily Record reporter, embarked on a vacation last Friday with wife Myrt and son "JR."

The Carlsons plan to spend most of their vacation in Virginia.

Clyde Burke, public relations director at Tobyhanna Signal Depot, made a big hit at the Pocono Mountains Outdoor Art Show on Friday and Saturday of last week.

Burke presented a display of his own photographs and the work brought much comment. All but one of the pictures were taken in Kentucky.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner, New Jersey's chief executive, will be at Unity House today through Wednesday.

He will be a speaker at the District Four IUE (AFL-CIO) meeting at the local resort.

Since we passed the flood anniversary last Saturday, it might be a good idea to reveal how high the Philadelphia Phillies hold the people of this area.

Harry Janson, Tannersville, recently returned a pair of reserve seat tickets for August 19, 1955, the day of the big flood. He had little hope of any sort of settlement. But, the National League club sent him a pair of box seat tickets, which are more expensive than the original purchase.

The seat turned out to be right by the dugout.

John Baujon, a member of the Stroudsburg police force, recently caught a copper-headed snake. He brings 'em back alive.

Bob Carlton, Delaware Water Gap, is back at his labors after a vacation of two weeks.

The first week was spent with wife and daughter at Seaside Heights, N.J.

"Kelly" McLaughlin, East Stroudsburg State Teachers College student, was the victim of a flat tire near Glen Brook on Friday.

Out of the Mouths of Press-

It could Only Happen in Hollywood (If It Happened At All): Kipp Hamilton, the red-head pip who plays a school teacher in "Bigger Than Life," was originally brought to Hollywood because of her sensational architecture which, Prof. Sokolsky, is 36-18-35 and you figure out where. But because she plays a school teacher in the film, James Mason, who produced it, said a school teacher just couldn't have that kind of shape (which shows what English James Mason knows about American school teachers) so he provided her with two pounds of padding to fill up the hollows and straighten out the curves, and that's unfriendly to Americans, huh!

Large Crowds Attend Opening Of Circus Tour

GONE—BUT NOT FOR COTTON—This, you might say, was the sentiment of the dozens of young children who attended "grand, gala opening" of new Malay Bros. Circus Saturday at Stokes Mill. Among celebrants were Mark, 6 and Sharon, 7, Monahan, shown here getting ready to indulge in a little of that old circus standby, the cotton candy cone. (Rollei Photo By MacLeod)

Social Director At Resort Wounded In Shooting Act

CRESO—Russell John Graham, 23, of Hawley RD1, a social director at a local resort hotel, was in General Hospital last night with a .22 caliber bullet wound in his right upper chest.

Mount Pocono State troopers said that Graham was the victim of a "trick shooting" accident Saturday afternoon at Merry Hill Lodge, Cresco RD1.

Police said the accident happened this way: Graham and Ronald R. Young, 48, co-owners of Merry Hill, were giving a personal target and trick shooting exhibition for guests at the inn at about 2:20 p.m. Saturday.

Graham was holding a balloon on a stick in his left hand at a distance of about 20 to 25 yards away from Young. Young was seated sideways on a chair. He was using a mirror to sight at his target—the balloon in Graham's left hand. He was using a .22 pistol.

Young fired three shots, police said. The fourth shot hit Graham in the upper chest area on the right side, police reported. The demonstration was being held off the terrace of the lodge. It was part of a regular exhibition held for the amusement of guests each week.

Police said the exhibition has been held "for months" without any mishap at all. They said Young theorized that "something must have gone wrong with the gun."

Graham was treated at the scene of the accident by Dr. David Kohn, Mount Pocono, police said. He was then taken to General Hospital of Monroe County.

Hospital sources said last night that he was in "good" condition under treatment there. The bullet entered and passed through the upper right chest region, a hospital spokesman said.

In the service room, along with other equipment is located the series radarscopes and the larger plexiglass monitoring installation on which overall courses of planes are plotted and followed.

Those making the trip, according to Crawl, were the following: J. Fielding Vollers, post supervisor of the Stroudsburg Ground Observer Council, Mrs. Vollers and Jackie Vollers, their daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Palmer (County GO chief); M/Sgt. Stanley Mick, Harrisburg; Elder Center and Stroudsburg CD and his son, William; Clarence Seip, president of the GO Council in the county; Mrs. Seip and Richard Seip; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gould and H. Charles Hoffman, Brothertown; John Schenk, an observer; Thomas Kistler, East Stroudsburg zone director; Herbert Baker, GO Council member; Mrs. Katherine Miller, CD headquarters supervisor and Mr. and Mrs. Crawl. The group returned to Stroudsburg at about 5 p.m.

Shawnee: Mrs. Frances Williams and son, Bangor RD1; Michael Toppin, Buck Hill; Mrs. Florence Ross, East Stroudsburg; Mrs. Martha Garner, East Bangor; Vivian Greenfield, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Harrison Whittaker, Bushkill; Mrs. Nettie Smith, East Stroudsburg.

A NEW CIRCUS gave its first performances here Saturday.

It was the Erma Maley Combined Circus Inc., a merger of two other shows which folded early this Summer—King Brothers and Barney Brothers Circus.

Both ran into financial difficulties shortly before the king of them all, Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey, called off its 1956 tour and returned to winter headquarters at Sarasota, Fla.

Part of the King troupe became stranded here for lack of funds while enroute from Middletown, Conn., to Macon, Ga.

Arthur Maley of Macon, a 26-year veteran of the business end of the circus, took over the show, merged it with other performers and held its premiere performances at Stokes Mill, along Brothertown Creek, Saturday afternoon and night.

New Tent

Operating under a new canvas tent that will accommodate 3,500 spectators when all the seats are in place, the new Maley Circus played to two large crowds on its opening day. The matinee attracted some 1,800 spectators and slightly more than that number watched the after-dark show.

Because all of the necessary rigging was not on hand when needed, the "big top" did not go up on schedule and the afternoon program was delayed until 3 p.m. As it was, the seats were erected in little more than half of the space permitted under the spacious white tent.

Despite the hour's delay, the crowds seemed to enjoy what they saw. Favorite among children and adults alike was the Alberto Zoppe Family of bareback riders, featuring Cuculo Zoppe, the midget "whirlwind rider."

Other outstanding acts were Miss Marian Seaford and her "high school" horse; Sandra Pettus, eight-year-old elephant trainer billed as the youngest in show business; Harry Rooks and his liberty horses; Signorina Ruggera, who walked upside down on a ladder suspended at the top of the tent; Madame Ronda, who drove a car blind-folded and hypnotized; three veteran clowns and several aerial acts.

Many of the animals in the menagerie were left in their cages along the creek. Later on, Maley said, he hopes to add to the menagerie and make it a part of the circus. He also is negotiating for a trapeze act and several others, and expects to sign them as soon as they complete their county fair engagements. Maley said he tried to sign a number of former Ringling acts, but was unable to attract them North from their Florida headquarters.

The show, which had been a part of the Pocono scene almost all Summer, left for Burlington, N.J., where it will perform today before moving on to Hammonstown, N.J., points in Delaware and Maryland later this week. It will be in Vienna, Va., next Monday, then swing through the South. Maley hopes to keep it on the road until November.

Food Booths Carnival Star Aux. Reports

On Wednesday night, August 15, 23 members, including all officers of the organization, were present when the Auxiliary to the Stroud Township Volunteer Fire Department met at Analomink Hall. Miss Alice Keller presided at the meeting.

Reports were presented by the carnival committee, of which Mrs. Clyde White was chairman. The recent event was a great success, she said, and the booth staffed by ladies of the auxiliary had done a record business selling home baked goods, pizza pies, beverages and doughnuts. The doughnuts were made at the carnival nightly and sold rapidly. Six hundred dozen were sold during the first five nights of the week while on Saturday night one hundred and eighty-four dozen were sold.

The members of the carnival committee expressed their thanks to all persons who contributed baked goods, their time or assisted in any way towards making this year's carnival such an outstanding success.

Mrs. Mabel Shook reported on the recent penny supper sponsored by the auxiliary, stating that it had proved to be a financial success.

Announcement was made that the next meeting will be held in the Poplar Valley Hall, on Wednesday night, September 12, when new officers will be installed and have charge of the business session.

Refreshments of cake, cup cakes and punch were served by Analomink members of the Auxiliary.

Art Group's Meeting Sun. At Buck Hill

Buck Hill — In conjunction with the annual meeting of the Buck Hill Art Association, to be held Sunday afternoon at 4, August 26, in the East Room of the Inn, a booklet has just been issued containing copies of the pictures now part of the permanent collection of the art association.

The Buck Hill Art Association was founded in 1933 by a group of cottagers upon the suggestion of Alexander J. Wall to "foster an interest in appreciation of art by sponsoring exhibitions of the arts, establishing purchase prizes and by lectures and discussions of art."

To date some 20 paintings have been acquired by the association, sharing with the Inn in their purchase. They represent a record of American Art of the first half of the 20th century. Reproduced in the booklet, and hung at the Inn, they cover a wide range.

Victor C. Anderson's "Sunday morning"; Frank DeHaven's, "Woodland Monarch"; Frederick Waugh and Gordon Grant in sea scenes; and Cullen Yates with Monroe County scenes, all are essentially American, Julien Binford, Hilde B. Kayn, and Eugene Speicher show modern trends.

Luther League Outing

The Luther League of St. John's Lutheran Church will hold a wiener roast Wednesday night at 6:30 at the Stroudsburg playground. In case of rain it will be held in the social rooms of the church.

Every once in awhile I get around to cleaning the top of my desk. And when I do, it's amazing the things I discover. Occasionally there are dimes and quarters that have worked their way under stacks of radio releases, letters, and books. Sometimes there are notes taken for future columns...and occasionally I can still read them.

This was the case yesterday when I came upon two pages of hieroglyphics having to do with Mrs. Ruth C. Jackson of Catonsville, representative for Freund-Mayer Company, Inc., and Constant Comment Tea, in this state, Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia. I remembered with pleasure the afternoon Mrs. Jackson called at my office to show me the Freund-Mayer line of paper goods available in our candy department. That was the afternoon I was introduced to Devon Lace—a paper napkin that looks as sheer as a fine handkerchief, and has a delicate pierced design as exquisite as the most intricate embroidery. It was so dainty and beautiful, I couldn't resist showing it to the girls in the lounge...and until they had touched it, they too were convinced that it must be linen.

Reaching for the telephone at this late date, I called Elsie Miller. "Did you ever receive the Devon Lace napkins you ordered?" I asked. She had...but she thought they'd better be inventoried before I wrote about them. "They sell for more than most paper goods," Elsie explained. "So I ordered very carefully...but we've only a few boxes left. We also have some of the camellia design, which is an older number with the line."

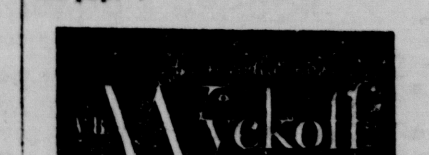

These are, as Elsie said, somewhat more expensive than the average paper napkin...but for the best reason in the world. They are cut with such care that it might almost be said they are handmade. Only four can be stamped at one time, and the retail price is 1.50 for 18 of ten size, and for 10 of lunch size.

Devon Lace is a very successful attempt by the manufacturer to produce more and more types of paper goods resembling superior table linen. As everyone knows, paper is finding greater acceptance in the dining room each year, for four very excellent reasons: it is disposable, and therefore presents no laundry problem; it is lovely and, when properly designed, far more attractive than inexpensive cloth napkins; informal entertaining is much preferred above formal entertaining today; and paper goods is a perfect solution to the ever-increasing housekeeping problems of the combination career-wife and homemaker.

Filling a need for uniformity in table decoration, Harold Mayer, president of Freund-Mayer, and his wife Julia, have worked in close unity to create patterns suited not just to napkins and cloths, but to doilies and saucer mats. The napkins are very often manufactured in Denmark, while the saucer mats, made of raw cellulose, come from England in coordinated patterns.

Mrs. Jackson showed me the Holly Boy party papers to which her company has exclusive right this year. This whimsical design, which captured public fancy here and abroad when it made its initial appearance on a Hallmark card two years ago, will now add fun and atmosphere to American Christmas parties on napkins. The packages are 25c and 25c depending upon size. Each contains 18. These too will be available at Wyckoff's.

From where we sit, it begins to look as though half the fun of any holiday gathering will surely be in the paper!

Norway's Fjords, Castles, Vikings Interest Local Visitor

(Miss Helen Donaldson, a student at Pennbrook College, of Timber Hill Farm, Cresco, is spending the summer with a Norwegian family as part of the group sponsored by the Experiment in International Living.)

Oslo, Norway—I got back in town in time to wander around and do a few errands—for the first time alone—and you should have seen me trying to buy rubbing alcohol. They apparently don't have it, as I discovered later when Randi was with me at least not like ours. Here, there is camphor in it and it is much more expensive. I met Randi at Pernille, the open-air restaurant, and later we met the group at Radhuset (City Hall). Then we all took the underground (the subway) to the radio station where we were given a guided tour. It is extremely modern and extremely plush; in the studios, at least the major ones, there are no right angles so that the acoustics will be better. This station was started before the war and continued during it by the Germans who needed it, and finished afterwards. For the job the Germans did on this, the Norwegians will give them credit perhaps the only good thing they have to say about them.

The next day, Randi, Karl, and I went to visit tante Annik and onkel Conrad, whom I had met at Far's birthday celebration. They spoke almost no English, but are wonderful and extremely friendly people—this family's favorite aunt and uncle. Onkel Conrad is an artist by hobby and he brought out beautiful books on Norwegian art and artists, and showed them to me. I learned more Norwegian that night than in any other time of equivalent length. By means of his few English words, my still fewer Norwegian words, and Randi and Karl's interpretation, we managed to communicate. We visited them in the evening and so naturally had coffee there, and delicious pastries. Afterwards, Onkel apologized for not having any cigarettes and I explained that I'd given up smoking because Norwegian cigarettes cost too much. So he sent Randi out to buy me a pack! And when I left I took with me two books he had given me—one called "Summer in Eastern Norway," illustrated with beautiful pictures, which will make a wonderful souvenir, and the other called "Kunsten Idag" (Art Today), which explained, with English translation, the decorations of City Hall and was illustrated with many pictures of them. That, with my book on the Vigeland sculpture park which Far bought for me, will serve to remind me of the modern cultural life of Norway. When we left after smorbrod and tea—I left behind the cigarettes, but Onkel came trotting after us to the bus stop with the cigarettes, smiling broadly.

On Saturday evening, Randi, Karl, and I took the sightseeing boat around Oslo fjord. It was freezing cold—I was cold in my winter suit and trench coat! But the sunset was glorious—the first I've ever seen here, really, because we face the east and the western sky isn't visible from the house. The trip took an hour and a half and wound in and out among the little islands in the fjord, while the guide described the various places of interest we passed in Norwegian, English and French. On Sunday, Bjorn had to work in the morning, but the other two Bjorns came over, as did Karin. It was too cold to go swimming so we played badminton and talked. I had another argument about American slipper heroes (i. e., men dominated by women) and about the picture of American life portrayed in the movies. I don't think I upheld my end of the argument very well!

That evening there was an all-group party to which I took the whole gang. I now have all the Americans in league with me to try to convince Bjorn M. that American girls are really not completely helpless when it comes to domestic matters—as I am. Discovering that the American girl who was staying at the home at which the party was being held was embroidering a table cloth, we took it out to Bjorn and showed it to him. He was unimpressed, since this particular girl happens to be of Norwegian descent and the tablecloth he considered to be her Norwegian part!

We were shown movies of May 17 which is Norwegian Independence Day and apparently celebrated with even greater fervor than our Fourth of July. But the big event of the evening was coffee time when we went indoors to be greeted by a perfectly gorgeous and spectacular display of food! Multi different kinds of cake—some of which I must get the recipes for, though it will be quite difficult since here all things are measured by weight instead of amount and in grams, at that.

Visit Castle

Yesterday, I took my first trip to town all alone! I was very impressed with myself. Did several errands and then went to Radhuset with the book onkel Conrad had given me so that I might perhaps understand the decorations a little better. I guess I did, really, though to me it's still sort of a conglomeration! And today, Randi went to town to do some last minute shopping before the hiking trip; I bought some Norwegian mittens for a little over one dollar. Then Randi went home and I met one of the Americans to go through Akershus, the huge, ancient castle which towers above the harbor. In the gray mist in which we saw it, it is quite easy to imagine medieval intrigue and romance happening there. It dates back to 1300 and is almost entirely made of brick—very thick brick walls. I especially liked the narrow, low-ceilinged, sloping passageways. We went on a guided tour, and I'm sure we didn't see more than a third of it, if that much. The huge banquet rooms are still used for state occasions—in fact, all state functions are held here rather than in the palace. The furniture in the rooms dates from all centuries and comes from all over Europe—huge, intricately carved, and inlaid pieces. We were not as impressed by that made in Norway as by that made in the rest of Europe—except for the leather-covered straight chairs with muted colors in the designs.

I'm sure I have not told you about our tour of the peninsula of Bygdoy, just before my Stavenn visit. There we—Randi, Karl, and I—saw first the Viking ships—three of them, all found near the Oslo fjord, one, at least as recently as 1904 and I think all of them that recently. The one which was in good condition was just as you picture a Viking ship. I was particularly interested in the wonderful carving all the way down the prow.

See Kon Tiki

From there we went on down the peninsula to Kon Tiki and Fram. Kon Tiki is in a house of its own, the walls covered with photographs taken on the trip, many of which were in the book. The raft is really pretty big, though of course minute for crossing the Pacific. It's not the six by six thing you imagine as a raft, though, and the balsa logs of which it is made are huge. Unfortunately, you couldn't see the bottom of it (I thought I tried)—I wanted to see if there were any remains of all the sea life that was supposed to be under the raft. I'm very glad I read the book just before I left. Farm, which was used by both Nansen and Amundson and which has been further north and further south than any other ship, is in a triangular-shaped building right next to Kon Tiki. (The building is built on the same plan as the old boat houses.) You can go through the ship as well as wander around the outside, and look at all the connected displays on the walls. Quite small compared to the Waterman—and it's all made of wood.

Then we walked back to the Folk Museum, which I loved. I was tired, and it revived me! It consists of 150 buildings which have been dismantled and brought here from rural districts all over Norway. They are the old farmhouses and they are grouped together in little villages with lots of trees and grass around so that you think you are really in the country. You may go through about one building in every group and in each of these there is a woman in the native dress from that area. I love old houses anyway, with the wide boards in the floors and the big open beams, so I liked this picturesque rustic place. Many of the cabins had grass growing on the roofs and other roofs were made of red tile. The open houses are all furnished with the original furniture and utensils which I also loved. I don't see how they ever got any sleep, though, for the beds are all very short and they slept sitting up!

Maybe this is enough travelogue. I am having a very difficult time with this domestic business—how long do you cook corn on the cob? They never eat that here—it is for animals—and I thought it might be fun to get some—they say you can—and cook it. I'm afraid it would be foolhardy to attempt a pie, unless you can assure me that your recipe is foolproof. If it is, please send it. Otherwise, perhaps I could get away with apple crisp delight, or something similar and very simple. They don't have pies or anything like that here, either.

Sports Editor

THE ANNUAL Buck Hill Horse Show will be held Sunday, Aug. 26 at the Inn's Riding Ring. The first event will be under way at 11:30 a.m. and run through the rest of the afternoon.

All told there are 12 classes with a dozen trophies on tap for the winners.

Mrs. Lloyd Williams of Stroudsburg captured top honors in the weekly snook fishing contest of the Sarasota, Fla. Tackle Club.

Mrs. Williams, a guest at the club with her husband, won the snook with a string of 23 snook grabbed during a single day's effort in the Gulf of Mexico.

Tom Somers, president of the Stroudsburg Varsity "S" Association finished up this week's vacation by playing golf yesterday at Ray Lambert's Mountain Manor, Marshalls Creek, course.

However, Tom, the former Mountaineer grid star, had to bypass a couple of holes in order to finish up before darkness intervened.

Incidentally, Lambert's nine-hole affair is coming along in great style. The greens are in A-number-one order and the fairways are further advanced than expected for this time of the year.

By 1957, Ray should have one of the better links in the vicinity.

Plans are already under way to form a softball league that will take in teams within a 15-mile radius of Stroudsburg.

The proposed circuit already has gotten feelers from Roseto, East Stroudsburg, Bangor and Pen Argyl. If the league goes through, there is a possibility that some members of the Monroe County Softball League will jump to the "new" loop.

The passing of Dick Forster to Lansford and the appointment of Doug Schoonover to Dick's vacated head basketball post at East Stroudsburg High is a move that probably balances the books more than any other change in the coaching field.

What the Cavaliers lost in Forster they gained by the acquisition of Schoonover. All anyone can say, "Best of luck to both men."

Easton High football coach Bob Rute received somewhat of a jolt the other day when he learned his star halfback of a year ago, Pete Americus, has only one season of football left.

Americus, who was a freshman sensation last year, is a native of Greece. And in the process of coming to this country his birth certificate was lost enroute. In checking back to the old country, officials found out that Pete was nearing the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association's age barrier, with just one grid season of eligibility left.

It will be a shame if the boy has to bypass an almost sure college career for too long of a wait — two years. We thought he was one of the finest running backs we've seen in many a moon.

College freshmen and varsity football coaches will be getting quite a collection of local material when school gets under way in September. East Stroudsburg's Dick Gray and Stroudsburg's Donald Hayes are headed for Colgate and Bucknell respectively, while "vets" Dave Nevil goes to Lehigh and Karl Weingartner and Al Adelman to Lafayette.

Both Adelman and Weingartner are former Mountaineers of then coach Jerry Stulgaitis.

Moranville College will latch on to Bill Sommers, the former grid and diamond satellite of East Stroudsburg, and former Cavaliers Bob Kupiszewski and Nick Patella head down south to Wake Forest.

Pocono Mountain Stars Sidetrack Boston Hoboes

Submerge Hub Nine 17 To 4 At Local Park

POCONO MOUNTAIN LEAGUE All-Stars paid little attention to the name Boston yesterday as they hammered the Hub's famed Hoboes diamond aggregation 17-4 in an exhibition game at Gordon Giffels Field yesterday.

The Frank Radler-managed PML nine made good use of the long ball and the shoddy play of the visitors to pile up the overwhelming margin of victory. The star-studded "Mountaineers" scored early and often enough to practically clinch the verdict at the halfway mark.

Kerl Weingartner had the PML's class longest hit when he belted a homer into the left field bleachers. Paul (Doc) Lin and Larry Hill and Dick Schaller also got into the act with triples, while Denny Roth and Clair Metzgar pitched in with doubles.

Three Hurters
Bob Bonser, who gave up all of the Hoboes' tallies during his three-inning stint, got credit for the mound win, leaving with his team ahead 5-4. Bob Burkett and Doug Price followed the Saylorburg chucker to the hill and threw blanks at the opposition the rest of the way.

After the Hoboes cut PML's margin to 5-4, Radler's crew really set sail, scoring five runs in the fifth, three in the sixth and four in the seventh.

22 In Action
Twenty-two players from 10 Pocono Mountain League teams played in the contest. All told the All-Stars collected 13 safeties which were divided equally among 13 batters.

Furgo Fires 15-Under Par To Capture Milwaukee Open

By CHUCK CAPALDO
MILWAUKEE, Aug. 19 (U)—Ed Furgo, who played hooky from his home club at St. Louis because he "likes action," staged a spectacular comeback today to win the $35,000 Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament with a 15-under par 265 for 72 holes.

Trailing Jackie Burke, Masters and PGA champion from Kiamish Lake, N. Y., by two strokes going into the final round, the lame-armed Furgo hammered out a methodical five-under-par 65.

Six birdies on the final 18 holes put the lid on Furgo's clutch round and earned him a first prize of $6,000 and a new red and white station wagon.

Burke 3rd
Burke, who led the pack with a 54-hole total of 198, wound up in third place with a 72 sprinkled with bogies and a final score of 270.

Second place went to Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., who fired a 66 today, with a four-round score of 269 over the hilly, windswept, par - 70 Tripoli Country Club course.

Bill Casper Jr. of Chula Vista, Calif., who was tied with Furgo at 200 going into today's play, finished fourth with a 271 on a final round of 71.

Tied for fifth place with 274 were Gay Brewer Jr. of Cincinnati, former National Junior Amateur titlist, and Don January of Abilene, Tex.

Last Minute Entry
The 39-year-old Furgo, whose left arm is 10 inches shorter than his right because of a childhood accident, decided at the last minute to enter the tournament. On his first glimpse of the course in Thursday's opening round, Furgo shot a course record seven-under-par 63. Burke also had a 63 earlier on opening day.

Furgo said he had one or two lessons scheduled at his home Westwood Country Club near St. Louis but decided to "skip school."

"I'm a guy who likes action," he said.

Confraternity Of Christian Doctrine Opens Info Center

MEMBERS of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine of St. Matthew's Parish formally opened a Catholic information center and library in a room at the Indian Queen Hotel yesterday morning.

Rev. Harold G. Durkin dedicated the room after the 8 a.m. mass.

The center contains more than 500 pamphlets and books of different titles. Developed as a project of the CCD Helpers Division, the room has a large table and a number of chairs where people go to read the literature that is available.

Arrangements are being made to supply pamphlets at a nominal cost to people who would rather read in their own homes. There is also a lending library which is stocked with over 100 books.

Confraternity members will staff the room Sundays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 7 to 9 p.m.; Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, 2 to 4 p.m.

Many persons visited the room on opening day and each received a blessed medal as a remembrance of the occasion. Theme of the center is "To re-establish all things in Christ." Subjects covered range from a child's first reading book to an adult's advanced book on history and Catholic teachings.

Teachers Other local teachers who have worked with the artist include Edna Palmer, Englehardt and Bruce Mitchell.

The public is cordially invited to attend tonight's opening and visit the show anytime during its two-week run. No admission is charged.

Second Area Outdoor Art Show Ends

THE SECOND 1956 Summer outdoor show, sponsored by Pocono Mountains Art Group, came to a close Saturday shortly before sunset.

A total of 58 artists exhibited work in the two-day show. Names not listed previously in Saturday morning's article in this paper were: Janet Hughes, Isabella Eglerberger, George Milchick, Kay Cays, Reathie Hummel, J. Carroll Tobias, Lorraine Shrubba, Margaret Hill and Amy Baldwin.

More than 1,200 pieces of work were shown, according to Olivia Dreher, show chairman. Miss Dreher said the show was a "fine exhibit" but that attendance this year was less than in the past "because of weather and other factors."
